Ball State University Professor Named New President

Following the completion of the National Coaching Educators Conference in late June, Lawrence Judge, PhD, CSCS, started his term as association President of the National Council for Accreditation of Coaching Education (NCACE). Dr. Judge, a long-time track and field coach, is an associate professor and coordinator of the graduate coaching program at Ball State University.

"It is quite an honor to be chosen by my colleagues for this leadership position," said Dr. Judge. "I am looking forward to the opportunities and challenges this new position will bring, and I am confident in my abilities to serve and lead the organization."

"We are very pleased to have such an accomplished sport coach and coaching educator as Larry to lead us through the upcoming year," stated Christopher Hickey, NCACE Executive Director. "Larry's work with USA Track & Field's (USATF) coaching education program and Ball State brings a rich and diverse background to our efforts to improve coaching quality across the United States," Hickey added.

Dr. Judge, the former head track & field coach at the Univ of Wyoming, has coached numerous national and international-level track and field athletes, and is a USATF certified Master Coach. He holds a PhD in Education Administration and a Master of Science Degree in Exercise Science and Sport Management from Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Indiana.

The National Council for Accreditation of Coaching Education (NCACE) is an organization established by the coaching education community across the U.S. Representatives include members from the single-sport, multi-sport, science/medical/educational fields, and colleges and universities concerned about the availability and quality of coaching education at all levels of sport. NCACE is a not-for-profit organization comprised of organizations and individuals involved in or supporting coaching and coaching education. NCACE supports, facilitates development of, and accredits coaching education programs and established program standards to conduct the program review for organizations seeking to provide effective coaching education programs at all levels.
